

John Slaven

Former CEO of Vedanta Aluminium and Executive Vice President and COO at Alcoa Corporation, overseeing global operations.

Previously, he held senior roles at BHP across various commodity groups and the Exploration division. John's career began at De Beers, followed by Boston Consulting Group, where he progressed to Partner and Managing Director, leading their Metals and Mining practice in North America. John is trained as a Mechanical Engineer at the University of Cape Town and has an MBA from Harvard Business School.